

Business Innovation Centre Networking Events

Image Rights - Are you Protected? Are you Infringing Somebody Else's Image Rights?

12 - 2pm 9 February 2012

Beacon International Centre, Stafford

Do you promote your business with leaflets, brochures and a website that have images on them? Do you have a piece of paper or licence for each of those images giving permission to use them for your purpose? If the answer's no - then you should consider attending this seminar. It could save you thousands of pounds in copyright fees.

Jane Green is a former BBC Web Producer and has run an online commercial photo library for 6 years. Sky News and various government agencies are amongst her clients. Photography law is complicated, but a little knowledge goes a long way. With new technology enabling photo owners to track and trace non-payers - you can't afford to take risks.

Picture law can sound a tedious subject - but it is surprisingly interesting when you start looking at Facebook and Twitter cases, the Beckhams and Disneyworld.

Come along to our session and leave with a clearer picture about photo law, and how to protect your business.

Event followed by a free buffet and an opportunity to Network!

Business
Innovation Centre

To book onto this free session ring:
0845 8458020
or e-mail: sandra.butterworth@thebic.co.uk

investing in your future
European Regional Development Fund
European Union

